While working as a reviewer for EJITE, what you have learned about yourself as a researcher?

It was a challenge and an adventure for me to explore the real situation of being a scholar and to brainstorm my proposal for the doctoral dissertation. It was my first experience being a student editor. After that, I submitted my first paper to The International Journal of Learning. In reviewing for EJITE, I read various published journal articles and looked at their writing structure and techniques; then, I compared what I found to my assigned paper to see how it could be strengthened. I gained some ideas about writing a formal research paper and about the importance of sharing research findings in the educational field. I believe that it is always easier to critique another's paper than it is to praise it, but at the same time, I gained a deeper understanding of the research process and the requirements for producing a publishable paper. I enjoyed reading research papers and I found it easier than before to search for articles for my own research project. If it is possible, I would like to devote myself to the research world and do research related to cosmetology, my profession.
